

University of Toronto Shelley Peterson Student Art Exhibition March 20 - April 11, 2015

TORONTO, ON - 02.26.2015 - The countdown has begun to an annual exhibition that celebrates the visual studies students and faculty across the University of Toronto's campuses. On March 20, 2015, the University of Toronto Art Centre (UTAC) opens the University of Toronto Shelley Peterson Student Art Exhibition, which will consider an expansive range of subject matter – emerging from each artist's exploration of contemporary culture and academic life – and engage with topics including post industrial decay, sexuality, and identity.

Curated by Master of Museum Studies students Molly McGowan, Jennifer Rodrigues, and Mélanie Mundle, the University of Toronto Shelley Peterson Student Art Exhibition showcases the exceptional work of the visual art undergraduate students across the University's three campuses. The exhibition presents a collection of 31 works, ranging in mediums that include photography, video, sculpture, painting, and installation.
