

News

March 19, 2012 — Exhibit showcases U of T's rarely seen Chinese propaganda collection

Mar 19, 2012 10:50 AM

Recommend

5

Tweet

By Sean Bettam

When art history PhD candidate Elizabeth Parke discovered a massive collection of posters from the eve of China's Cultural Revolution at the Thomas Fisher Rare Book Library, her first thought was, "I wish somebody could show these somewhere." It wasn't long before she decided to be the one to do so.

Courtesy of the Thomas Fisher Rare Book Library, University of Toronto.

Now showing at the University of Toronto Art Centre is workforce: representing labour in Chinese propaganda posters, an exhibition of 16 artworks that present vivid depictions of the theme of work as state propaganda. Curated by Parke, the exhibition examines representations of the worker to reconsider the toiling body in Chinese artistic production and to illuminate how ideas of work are mobilized in the name of nation-building.

"I wanted to move the focus of the posters away from kitsch and look at what else they are telling us," said Parke. "China has a workforce unrivalled in size, and in its move to become an industrialized nation, it succeeded based on its workforce."

Produced between the years 1963-1967, the posters convey the importance of work at the time. The figures portrayed are idealized and engaged in activities such as planting rice, breaking rocks, and ironworking – all tasks vital to China's goal at the time of catching up with England and surpassing America. Parke believes it's worth reconsidering how we think about work during the contemporary era of globalization fuelled by dematerialized capital.

Courtesy of the Thomas Fisher Rare
Book Library,
University of Toronto.

She culled the featured works down from the nearly 200 boxes of personal papers, manuscripts, photographs, posters and Mao Zedong badges donated to U of T by renowned journalist Mark Gayn. It's the only known collection of propaganda posters of its size in Canada, and possibly the second or third largest in North America.

Gayn had spent many years as a journalist with the Toronto Daily Star, the New York Times Magazine, the Washington Post, Le Monde, and the Chicago Daily News. His extensive travels through Asia and the Soviet Union earned him a reputation as one of the world's most knowledgeable commentators on these areas.

"The hardest part was figuring out how to do justice to the collection," Parke said. "I wanted to show what we have here at U of T and still maintain a tight theme."

The exhibition is sponsored in part by the Faculty of Arts & Science Dean's Student Initiative Fund. The fund provides financial support for initiatives that aspire to create dialogue and foster a greater sense of community through special events, lectures, or other forms of community engagement. Parke timed it to coincide with the annual meeting of the Association of Asian Studies, the premier conference for Asia scholars in North America, at which she organized a panel of leading scholars of the Cultural Revolution to discuss the unique collection with an international audience.

"I most want people who see the exhibit to recognize the excitement of this collection," she said.

Workforce runs until April 21.

Maureen Smith

From: U of T Bulletin [bulletin@utoronto.ca]
Sent: Thursday, March 22, 2012 2:06 AM
To: Maureen Smith
Subject: Bulletin | Alumnus Named 2012 Harry Jerome Young Entrepreneur

If your computer does not display the file below, please visit the web version

<http://www.utoronto.ca/ebulletin/12-03-22/bulletin-12-03-22.html>

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

the Bulletin

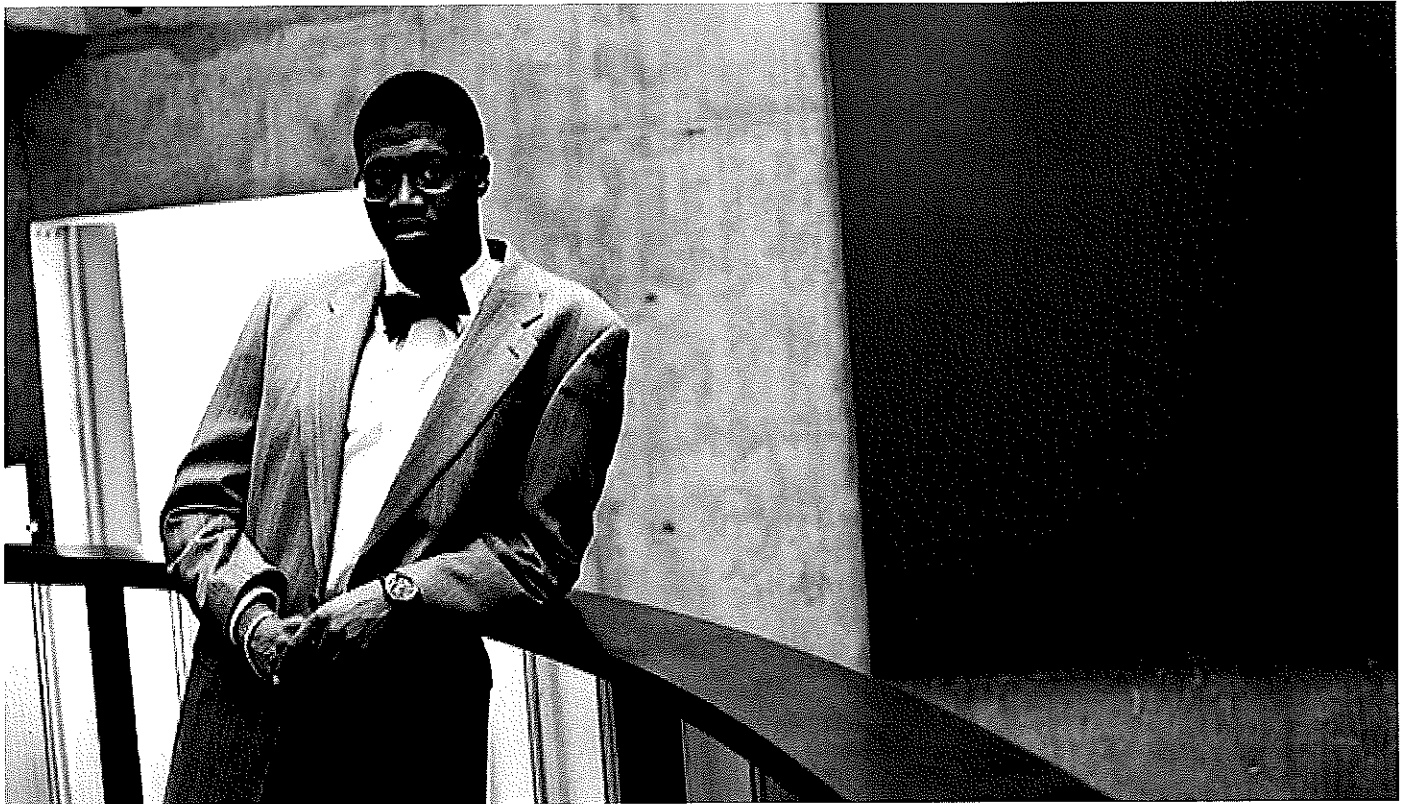

Mar. 22/12

Volume 5

Number 51

ALUMNUS NAMED 2012 HARRY JEROME YOUNG ENTREPRENEUR

Andrew Forde, materials science and engineering alumnus (pictured here), has been named the 2012 Harry Jerome Young Entrepreneur Award by the Black Business and Professional Association.

STAFF & FACULTY NEWS

more

EXHIBIT SHOWCASES U OF T'S RARELY SEEN CHINESE PROPAGANDA COLLECTION

■KNOW A STUDENT LOOKING FOR HOUSING? HAVE A PLACE YOU'D LIKE TO RENT?

Housing Services has developed a new website, with a map-based apartment search tool for students and landlords ...

■PEOPLE'S CHOICE OF CANADIAN LITERATURE

Vote for your favourite faculty, staff or alumni book in the second annual CBC Bookie Awards ...

■METROPASS SALES TIME APPROACHES

Metropasses for April will be on sale next week at all locations ...

related stories: faculty & staff

RESEARCH NEWS

more

WRITING THE BOOK ON ATHLETE PROTECTION

■STUDY SUGGESTS NO PERMANENT RELIEF FROM ASTHMA

Andrea Gershon, an associate professor at the Institute for Health Policy and Management, is lead author on a study that suggests asthma is a life-long affliction ...

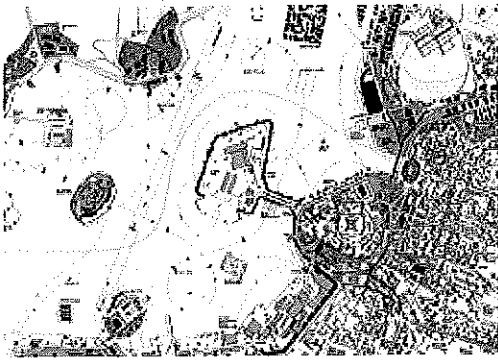

■RESEARCH DEMONSTRATES HOW CHILDREN LEARN ABOUT PREJUDICE

U of T researchers Sonia Kang and Michael Inzlicht discovered that the way in which children learn about prejudice depends on their age ...

related stories: research

HOT TICKETS & EVENTS

more

▣ FUTURE OF HEALTH CARE IN ONTARIO

Join U of T health studies students on March 24 for a discussion about the future of public health care in Ontario ...

▣ THE FUTURE OF IRELAND'S NATIONAL LIBRARY

Curious about Irish heritage and culture? Tonight Fiona Ross, director of The National Library of Ireland, will speak about the institution's future ...

related stories: events

AFFORDABLE UTOPIAS

ARTSZONE

▣ FESTIVAL OF DANCE

On March 23 and 24 Hart House Theatre hosts Canada's largest university dance festival. This annual showcase features performers from all three U of T campuses ...

related stories: teaching

more

MANAGING WORK & LIFE

▣ STRETCH AND STRENGTHEN

Grab your exercise mat and attend this March 23 lunchtime Pilates-inspired workout ...

related stories: familycare

more

STUDENT EXPERIENCE

▣ MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN A PROFESSOR'S LIFE

Watch this public service announcement and find out why you should take the time to visit your professors during office hours ...

related stories: student life

more

GROW YOUR CAREER

▣ HIGH IMPACT TEAMS

March 26 Enhance your team's capacity for working together and in each stage of team development ...

related stories: odlc

more

AWARDS & FELLOWSHIPS

▣ FAST APPROACHING DEADLINES

Nomination deadlines are approaching for the Bower Award, the Killam Prizes, the Stecie Prize in the Natural Sciences and the World Food Prize.

If you are planning to submit a nomination, or have any award-related questions, please contact Elissa Strome, director of strategic initiatives.

Check the OVPR awards and honours webpage for a full

more

SPORTING LIFE

▣ WILKINSON AND SO NAMED ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

Badminton players Andrew Wilkinson and Bethany So have been named the MBNA Varsity Blues athletes of the week ...

related stories: varsity blues

more

list of awards.

related stories: awards

DID YOU KNOW ...

U of T has one of only two university social work faculties in Canada offering a specialization in gerontology.

--- Social Work 2010-11 Year in Review

© University of Toronto
University of Toronto, 21 King's College Circle, Toronto, Ontario, Canada M5S 1A1
ebulletin@utoronto.ca

Designer: Johnny Guatto

Archives
Contact us
Plain Text
Unsubscribe
U of T News

