Kent Monkman Exhibit: Shame and Prejudice, a Story of Resilience

January 26 - March 4

Art Museum Press Release – January 2017 – KENT MONKMAN EXHIBIT

Major Kent Monkman exhibition Shame and Prejudice: A Story of Resilience organized by the Art Museum at the University of Toronto for Canada's Sesquicentennial in 2017

Kent Monkman's new, large scale project takes the viewer on a journey through Canada's history that starts in the present and takes us back to a hundred and fifty years before Confederation. With its entry points in the harsh urban environment of Winnipeg's north end, and contemporary life on the reserve, the exhibition takes us all the way back to the period of New France and the fur trade.

Opening Reception: Thursday, January 26, 2017

Public opening: 6:30-8:30 p.m.

Public Lecture: Wednesday, February 1, 4:30 – 6 pm

Kent Monkman presents the annual "R. K. Teetzel Lecture in Art" at UC 140.

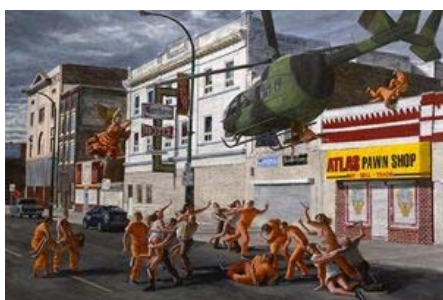

The lecture will be followed by a reception at the University of Toronto Art Centre.

Curatorial Tour: Saturday, February 4, 2 pm

Kent Monkman leads a curatorial tour of the exhibition.
